Tyson Reynoso joined King Street Properties in 2015. As Director, Tyson has broad development management responsibilities including design, permitting, financing, construction, leasing, and asset management. At King Street, Tyson has managed both ground-up and redevelopment projects including the redevelopment, lease-up and eventual recapitalization of 733 Concord Avenue as well as the acquisition, permitting, financing, design and construction of 828|830 Winter Street, Waltham and 33 New York Avenue, Framingham.

Tyson brings strong development and construction experience, having worked on numerous large scale, ground-up projects across various market sectors and regions. Prior to joining King Street, Tyson worked as Project Manager for Suffolk Construction on a 240,000 SF, 218-unit luxury apartment building at 30 Dalton Street in Boston's Back Bay neighborhood. Prior to this, he completed the Radian, a 293,000 SF, 240-unit mixed-use luxury apartment building in Boston's Chinatown district. Tyson also worked on the Tree House Residence Hall at the Massachusetts College of Art and Design – a $52M, 21-story dormitory on Huntington Avenue in Boston, and West Point Motor Pool – a $40M design-build vehicle facility for the United States Army Corps of Engineers in West Point, NY. Aside from Tyson's construction experience at Suffolk Construction, he also worked as Special Assistant to the CEO of Suffolk where he was responsible for coordinating the daily activities of the CEO and assisting in the execution of the CEO's responsibilities.

Tyson graduated Summa Cum Laude with a BS in Civil Engineering from Tufts University where he was 3-year varsity football letter winner and a co-captain his senior year.
